State O P S Plans Schedule To Reach Small Businesses

In a move intended to accelerate the price control information and compliance program in Maine, the Portland OPS office today announced a novel "Town Crier" campaign aimed at the technical guidance of the small community business man in the state.

One of the most important phases of the agency's program, according to state director Edmund S. Muskie, the project is expected to cover 300 Maine communities in 30 days, and bring the regulations right down to the small businessmen and the one-man businesses who heretofore have not been reached.

The operation, said Muskie, will start July 16 and continue through August.

"Until now," said Muskie, "the efforts of the agency have been concentrated on the large communities in the state, and, because of lack of man-power, the smaller communities, of necessity, have been neglected."

"This program is intended to correct that deficiency. We always have recognized the problem of the one-man businesses that are so numerous in Maine's outlying communities, but until now have been unable to do anything about the situation. We know that many of them find it impossible to get away from their businesses long enough to straighten out some of their problems with us. Therefore we have gone back to the basic and old-fashioned method of disseminating information. We have initiated a 'Town Crier' program, which in the next 30 days should just about blanket every small business establishment in the state."

The program, explained Muskie, will bypass Maine's larger towns and cities because during the early stages of the OPS campaign they all were covered by group clinics and special consultation groups.

Generally the plan calls for four two-man teams operating simultaneously in designated portions of the state and making personal visits to businessmen in the small communities and arranging for group consultations in the larger towns. The teams, according to Muskie, will inform the businessmen of the specific regulation affecting them, explain the requirements, and aid them in every way possible to understand the complex points of the regulation.

"The purpose of the campaign," said Muskie, "basically is to achieve public understanding, compliance and cooperation by consumer groups and retailers in those areas of Maine which are difficult to reach by means of normal media. The program," he added, "is strictly one of education and compliance, and not one of enforcement."

Emphasis first will be placed on the resort areas, said the OPS director, because many of the operators in those sections were not actively engaged in business at the time the regulations went into effect.

Among the most important of the regulations to be explained during the tour, he said, are those pertaining to retail grocers, retail beef dealers, restaurants, petroleum dealers, apparel stores, department stores and services.

The latter regulation (CPR 24) covers a wide variety of personal and business services, and although one of the most simple of the regulations, is the one least understood, according to Muskie. The reason, he said, is because it does cover such a wide variety of services, that many operators are uncertain of their position in regard to it.

In its broad scope it includes such personal services as barber and beauty shops, shoe repair shops, tailors, dressmakers, dry cleaners, etc. It also affects such resort area operations as bathing areas, skating rinks, golf courses, boat and canoe rentals, public services, bicycle rentals, automobile services, and so on.

The program is being worked out in conjunction with town selectmen, trade organizations and key businessmen in the communities, many of whom have been asking for the personalized service ever since the program went into effect. Muskie estimated that the teams would travel nearly 7,000 miles and Muskie estimated that the teams would visit an approximate 7,000 businesses at the rate of one visit a mile.

Let's Stop This Wastel

Then spoke Jesus to the multitude and to his disciples, saying: "The scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat. All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, do ye: but do not ye after their works: for they say, and do not." Matthew 23:2-3

Editorial: The scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat. All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, do ye: but do not ye after their works: for they say, and do not. This is a warning to us to be careful of the things we do, and not just the things we say.

What Mr. Kelly said: The major danger to our country is the loss of our moral and spiritual values. We must stop this wastefulness and get back to the basics of life.

What Mr. Kelly did: He has been a leader in the fight against waste and inefficiency. He has shown us that it is possible to do more with less.

His plan of government: He believes in a government that is efficient and economical. He wants to see the government stop wasting money and get back to work.

Worry Works Its Way

A STORY TOLD ME BY M. M. Henry, 313 Chestnut Avenue, Anniston, Alabama, relates an experience which he declares was based entirely on worry.

About four years ago he developed a cold. This worried him because he had no time to spare. He had no appetite; that wasn't alarming, but the condition of his throat was. His worry increased. One night after he had gone to bed he struggled. Switching on the lights his wife saw that his lips were purple, and that he was getting black in the face. She called the doctor, who, after examining him, said, "Mrs. Henry, I don't know what the trouble is, but I can do for your husband. Tomorrow I'll arrange to have a specialist examine him."

But the specialist didn't help, and Mr. Henry's condition continued to grow worse. After a few more days, he took a plane to Atlanta, Georgia, and went to the best authority the city afforded. But this learned man only shook his head, laid down his instrument and walked out, saying that he would return in a few minutes. Soon a second doctor looked at Mr. Henry's throat and advised hospitalization and an operation. (Later Mr. Henry learned they thought he had cancer of the throat.) After the operation, he was sent home, but was to return in two weeks for a second operation.

At home, his family doctor told his wife there was little hope of his ever getting well, and advised sending him to John Hopkins in Baltimore. His wife urged this and accompanied him to Baltimore, where he started on the routine of X-rays and medical examinations which lasted three weeks.

He felt very hopeful now, and his wife was very encouraging. They decided to see something of the town, make it a sort of holiday period. There was nothing said against eating what he liked, so they visited the best eating places, too. And they thoroughly enjoyed their visit, almost forgetting what they were there for except at the times they must keep appointments with the medical men.

In three weeks, the doctor who headed the nose and throat department said, "Mr. Henry, we are going to discontinue you today." "But, Doctor," said Mr. Henry, "you haven't told me yet what was the matter with me."

"Oh, nothing serious," was the reply. "You began to improve shortly after you got here."

What was the matter with him? Well, as stated above, Mr. Henry says it was nothing but worry working its way out of his system. And he has learned to put aside worry as he would the plague, for it can really bring on all sorts of things to plague a man.

THE WEEK IN Washington

A bill to amend the Federal Reserve Act has been introduced in the House. The bill is designed to give the Federal Reserve Board more power in the selection of members of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve banks. The bill is sponsored by Representative Charles McNary of Oregon.

The peace proposal made by the Russian delegate to the United Nations was viewed with interest in Washington. President Truman promptly replied from Tallahassee, Fla., where he made a foreign relations speech, that now as always we held the door open for peace in Korea, providing it was a real settlement, calling for an end to aggression and restoring peace and security in the area and to the Korean people.

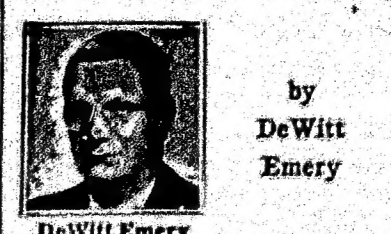

First reaction from the state department was contained in a brief statement which said, "If Mr. Malik's broadcast means that the communists are now willing to end the aggression in Korea, we are, as we have always been, ready to play our part in bringing an end to hostilities and in securing against their resumption. But the tenor of Mr. Malik's speech again raises the question as to whether this is more than propaganda. If it is more than propaganda, adequate means for discussing an end to the conflict are available."

A special committee was set up to study the situation. The committee is headed by Representative Charles McNary of Oregon. The committee will report to the House on the bill to amend the Federal Reserve Act.

The committee will also study the situation in Korea and report to the House on the peace proposal made by the Russian delegate.

THE AMERICAN WAY

Are You A Gullible Gull?

DelWitt Emery
EDITOR'S NOTE: DelWitt Emery is president of the National Small Business Men's Association.

In a recent issue of the monthly bulletin of the National Small Business Men's Association, Jacksonville, Florida, we found the following "gem of wisdom." The bank calls it "The Fable of the Gullible Gull." Here it is:

"In the friendly city of St. Augustine, great flocks of sea gulls are starving amid plenty. Fishing is still good, but the gulls don't know how to fish. For generations, they have depended on the shrimp fleet to toss them scraps from the nets. Now the fleet has moved to Key West.

"The shrimpers had created a Welfare State for the St. Augustine sea gulls. The big birds never bothered to learn how to fish for themselves, and they never taught their children to fish. Instead, they fed their little ones to the shrimp nets.

"Now, the sea gulls, the fine free birds that almost symbolize liberty itself are starving to death, because they gave in to the 'something for nothing' lure! They sacrificed their independence for a handout.

"A lot of people are like that, too. They see nothing wrong in picking delectable scraps from the tax nets of the U. S. Government's shrimp fleet. But what will happen when the government runs out of goods? What about our children or generations to come?

"Let's not be gullible gulls. We Americans must preserve our talents of self-sufficiency, our genius for creating things for ourselves, our sense of thrift and our true love of independence."

I'm afraid that a great many of us are as "gullible" as the gulls. Too many of us have listened to and believed the "government owes me a living" propaganda which has been fed to us by Washington bureaucrats. We have forgotten that the only security which is worth anything at all is the security we provide for ourselves by our own efforts.

Whether we realize it or not, whether or not we believe it, it nevertheless is an eternal truth that there never has been a successful substitute for hard work.

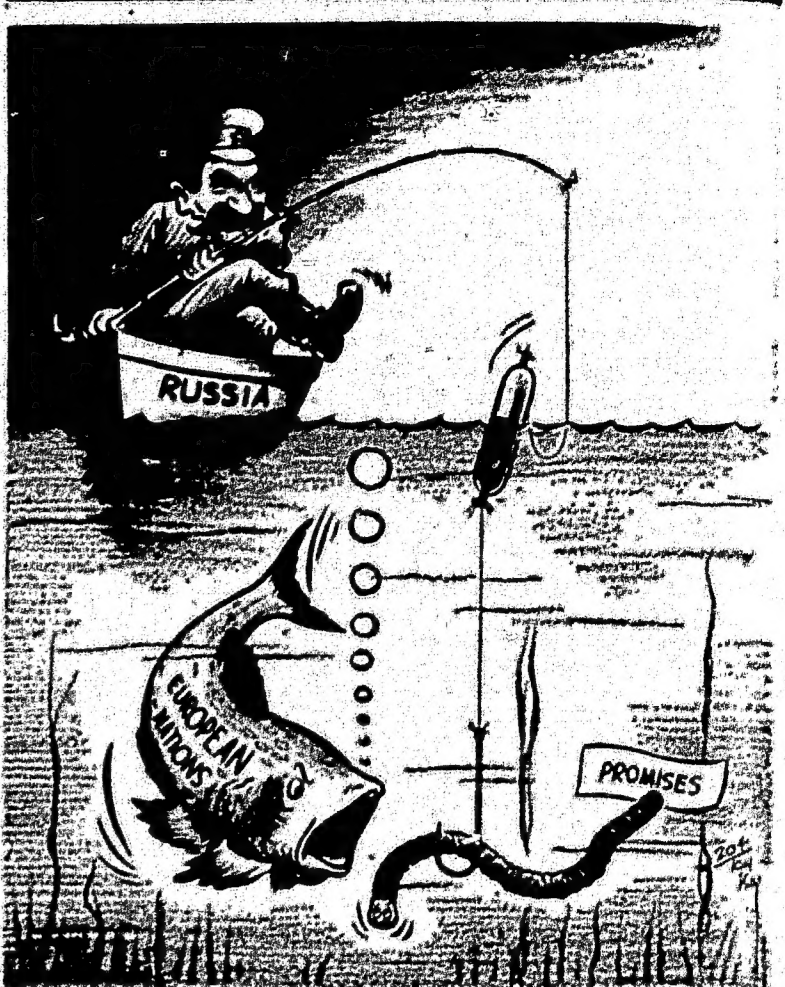

By LITTLE HULL
"MUGWUMP" is an American nickname for one who votes for the Party—or the man—he believes will best represent the interests of his country. To the honest Mugwump a "died in the wool" Republican—or Democrat—is either a politician; a man too lazy to think for himself; an ignorant man, or a fellow who doesn't care much "whether school keeps or not."

He can't quite understand why one should vote the Democratic—or Republican—ticket just because his father and grandfather did. He wonders why the South was "Democratic" back away, and why the North was "Republican". But most of the reasons for this difference having disappeared with time, he doesn't understand why the South—or the North—would help elect an administration which they considered inferior to one which was obviously superior.

And yet that is the way it goes—with this difference. Today, as opposed to yesterday, millions of us vote for the party which we think will benefit us personally.

So now there are two varieties of Mugwump. The old school—which thinks of his country and its future, and the new school which thinks of it in terms of saccharine.

and thrift? Abraham Lincoln said it this way: "You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong. You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer. You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich. You cannot establish sound credit on borrowed money. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn. You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves."

Phoenicians were a bit more material in dealing with sea gulls. They reasoned that the king of the sea had all the fish he could handle, so they concealed a coin in the bait. This indicated that they were willing to pay for all the fish taken from his ocean kingdom.

If a fisherman in old Scotland met a stranger or a woman in a white apron, he promptly did an about-face and put his fishing off till another day.

Other ancient taboos forbid talking the hook with the left hand and telling anyone the correct number of fish that were caught.

Phoenicians were a bit more material in dealing with sea gulls. They reasoned that the king of the sea had all the fish he could handle, so they concealed a coin in the bait. This indicated that they were willing to pay for all the fish taken from his ocean kingdom.

If a fisherman in old Scotland met a stranger or a woman in a white apron, he promptly did an about-face and put his fishing off till another day.

FREE RUG HOOKING BEE IS ON STORROWTON SUMMER SCHEDULE

An old time rug hooking bee to which hookers, both men and women from all over New England are invited will be one of the outstanding mid-summer events at Storrowton, the Colonial village on the grounds of the Eastern States Exposition in West Springfield, Mass. It will be held on Thursday, July 26, rain or shine.

The event which is of unique interest to rug hookers far and wide is sponsored by the Home Department of the Eastern States Exposition as a feature of the third annual nation-wide hooked rug contest now under way. Mrs. Pearl McGown of West Boylston, Mass., one of the best known hooked rug designers of the present day, and a group of her instructors will be on hand to assist hookers on every phase of rug making from design to dyeing of materials and fine techniques.

The hooking bee is open to all without charge and is not confined to those who have entered the Exposition's contest, but its benefits are available to hookers of all types, whether experienced in this colorful craft or beginners in need of supervision and assistance. The hooking bee will be in progress from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. Those who plan to attend may bring their own picnic lunches and supplement the food with hot or cold drinks and ice cream which will be available at the village snack bar, or they may enjoy luncheon at the famed Atkinson Tavern in the village.

If the weather is fine hookers will set up their rugs on the elm shaded green and enjoy working out of doors. In the event of inclement weather the Town Hall will be the rug hooking bee center for the day. Storrowton offers an

TO AVOID FUEL SHORTAGE FILL BINS, TANKS EARLY

Fuel shortages loom for Maine people next winter unless they fill their coal bins and oil tanks during the summer and fall. Governor Frederik G. Payne learned Monday.

In a letter to the chief executive, Oscar L. Chapman, Secretary of the Interior, predicted that the mounting burden on transportation facilities occasioned by the growing defense program will make it difficult to keep fuel moving in sufficient volume to consumers during the winter months.

Defense Transport Administrator James K. Kaudson, said Chapman, has pointed out that only "near miracles" in transportation prevented "widespread suffering" last winter even though the defense load was far under what it will be this year.

While few Maine citizens have facilities for storing a season's supply of fuel, Governor Payne said that the filling of bins and tanks now would create a backlog that would relieve the pressure on transportation facilities later on.

The Difference

There is little difference between the cost of good printing and poor printing, but the satisfaction in the use of stationery, forms or any printed matter correctly prepared is well worth the additional expense, if any.

It is largely a matter of attention to the details of the work and knowledge of the customer's requirements. Therefore it is quite possible to buy better service at a reasonable price when you seek the benefit of our experience.

Just Telephone One Hundred when printing is needed. If we can't do it as it should be, or get it for you economically, we will tell you.

The snow covered barren wastes of the Arctic were once covered by lush tropical jungles according to the World Book Encyclopedia. Discovery of coal beds there, in which were found the remains of many plants and animals, convinced scientists that the top of the world was once a country much like Africa.

MAINE GROWERS VOTE DOWN POTATO MARKETING ORDER

Maine potato growers voted to end the Federal Marketing Order No. 87 in a referendum held in June.

The order was terminated on June 30. The eight-man State of Maine Potato Committee also ceased to exist. The order had authorized the regulation by grade and size of the handling of Irish potatoes grown in Maine. Nearly three-fourths of the growers voting favored dropping the order.

"Why bother to wash when I'll just get them dirty again?" is a usual parental problem with an elementary school son. Parents often take such actions too seriously and feel that severe discipline must be taken to overcome the undesirable trait. According to child experts of "Childcraft" house and garden behavior is normal behavior for this age and is soon outgrown.

"What government is best?" That is a question to be asked by every citizen. The answer is found in the Constitution.

PRESENTS "MODERN MAINE" VOLUMES—Gov. Frederick G. Payne, seated, extends congratulations to Richard A. Hebert, of Portland, author and editor of "Modern Maine," a new four-volume compendium on the Pine Tree State. Hebert, editorial manager of the Maine Publicity Bureau, presented the first set to the Governor.

Gov. Frederick G. Payne this week was the first recipient of the new four-volume work entitled "Modern Maine," edited by Richard A. Hebert, editorial manager of the Maine Publicity Bureau. The Lewis Historical Publishing Company of New York, which has specialized in state and regional compendiums for nearly 100 years, declares the work to be one of the most outstanding and comprehensive individual state descriptions it has ever published.

L. W. Roy, treasurer of the publishing company, will be in Maine for the next few weeks supervising delivery to advance subscribers in all sections of the State.

Hebert has devoted nearly all his spare time for the past three years to preparing and editing "Modern Maine." For brief periods in the last stages of preparation he was assisted by two research representatives of the publisher.

The four-volumes of the set, illustrated with many modern photographs cover: The historical narrative of the State of Maine for the past 250 years to the present; a topical resume of major government, economic, cultural, professional, religious and organizational developments; a county-by-county and town-by-town gazetteer detailing local historical, physical and economic highlights and a volume of some 1,200 selected biographies of prominent Maine families and individuals.

The biographical volume was prepared entirely by the publisher and all sections of the State are represented. The entire set runs to approximately 7,500 words.

Editor Hebert was born at West Bethel, attended Portland schools and Holy Cross College. After a short period as high school instructor in history and civics, he was a reporter and copy editor for the Portland Press Herald for 15 years. For the past six years he has prepared and edited all Maine Publicity Bureau publications, broadening general publicity writing. His work has taken him to every section of Maine.
